Présentation

Description

The "Ecopolitics in Africa" module is devoted to an approach to Africa in terms of political ecology.

It focuses on tensions, conflicts and political and diplomatic regulations around issues of two types/scales: on the one hand, localized and circumscribed issues such as issues around water and land or issues related to protected areas and on the other hand, more global issues related to climate change and its tropical and African repercussions and the negotiations they feed and the way in which African States and actors participate in them.
